

ELECTIONEERING

RULES FOR PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS & PUBLIC CHARITIES

You should ask the following questions when considering whether an activity violates the electioneering prohibition.

1. Does the activity or work product mention candidates, elections, or voting explicitly?
2. Is the activity close in time to an election?
3. Does the private foundation or public charity have a track record of doing this kind of activity outside election season?
4. Does the activity benefit one candidate or party at the expense of another?
5. Does the activity involve an issue that has been identified with one candidate or party during the campaign?
